Atlanta- The “BEATING HEART OF GEORGIA” has it all, culture, sporting heroes, museums and the largest inland aquarium in the country along with an abundance of great areas to antique.

The “Gone With The Wind” movie premiered more than 65 years ago however, the movie and the novel, still inspire curiosity about Atlanta and the Southern way of life.

Scotts antique fair one of the largest monthly antique gatherings in America. Located on two large sites on the outskirts of Atlanta, with both indoor and outdoor vendors displaying a magnificent contrasting array of antiques and collectibles.

Madison and Macon- are very different from each other, but both offer a wide variety of antiques and more “antebellum” (before the civil war) homes than any other town or city in America.

Juliet- is home to the “Whistle Stop Café” portrayed in the film Fried Green Tomatoes, typical small rural village in Southern Georgia and remains exactly as shown in the film and if you haven’t tried Fried Green Tomatoes these are the best.

Savannah- They are more friendly than formal in Savannah.

Whoever you are, wherever you’re from, Savannah welcomes you with true Southern hospitality, just as they have been welcoming guests since 1733. Hip and historic, robust and refined, Savannah is where you’ll find amazing architecture, spooky cemeteries and rich history—along with global sophistication and fabulous food. It’s where history resonates into the present day, and where memories are still being made and great antiques can still be found. www.savcvb.com

The Ancient City of St Augustine, Florida.- Founded by the Spanish in 1565 boasts to be the oldest continually inhabited city in the United States more information about this fascinating coastal city with an abundance of history and wonderful beaches can be found on www.getaway4florida.com

Renningers at Mount Dora and Deland- These are just two of the many central Florida towns we visit searching for antiques, Mount Dora is the home to Renningers antique extravaganza more information can be found on www.renningers.com

Deland and other similar sized towns in central Florida are jewels often missed when visiting Florida they represent the history and culture not often displayed in the tourist brochures.
